

Scenarios

- A person is 18 years old. They live in a political swing state. They are just out of high school and want to understand the election results because of their new found voting rights.
- A person is 50 years old. They live in a low populated area and are a blue collar worker with a high school education. They want to learn more about the 2020 election results because they want to understand who is voting for each candidate.
- A person is 80 years old. They live in the suburbs of a major city as a retired veteran. The 2020 election results are in and they want to access them because they care about their country's politics.

User Stories

- As a young voter, I want see info on the election so that I can learn more about elections
- As an old voter, I want a simple and accessible way to see the election results in depth
- As a person who supports a political party, I want to be able to see voting results for my party

Feature List

- A list of votes by state
- Each state should have a list of votes by county
- A way to show the winner of each state
- A way to show the population density in each county
- A map showing all the results of each state, if you click on a state, it shows a list of votes by each county